BISHOP POTTER ADVISES GOING TO THE COURT

Suggests an Injunction to Keep Bishop Willis From Ending Second Congregation.

I would by all means get out an injunction to restrain Bishop Willis from attempting in any way to interfere with your congregation.

I am writing him by this mail in very plain terms.—Extract from a letter of Bishop H. C. Potter to Rev. Alexander Mackintosh.

IF THERE remained any doubt in the minds of churchmen, that the Committee of Bishops, which considered the matter of the transfer of the Anglican church in these islands to the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, wished the status quo maintained until the arrival of the American Bishop, it was dispelled when there was received by the Rev. Alexander Mackintosh, rector of the Second Congregation, a letter from Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York, an extract from which is printed above.

This array on the side of the Second Congregation as against Bishop Willis, two of the three members of the committee, an expression from Bishop Nichols of similar purport having been received by the same clergyman in the last mail. The remaining member, Bishop Whitaker, is now so seriously ill at his home, that it is not probable that his mail has been handed to him, and therefore he is in ignorance of the conditions which have been raised here by the action of the retiring Bishop. Bishop Willis was asked yesterday if he had received any letters bearing upon the existing troubles, and replied that he had no letters of such nature, as his communications from the mainland were all personal. It may be, however, that he would consider a "plain" letter from Bishop Potter, along the lines indicated in the note quoted, as exceedingly personal, and the chances are that it is so.

The receipt of this communication, which was communicated to the officials of the Second Congregation early yesterday, put a new phase upon the situation in the Episcopal church affairs, and it is more than likely that there will be action in the courts today, which will bring the affair to a head. The legal course, it is understood, will be the asking for an injunction to restrain Bishop Willis or any of the clergy under his control, from interfering with the services of the Second Congregation upon Sunday morning next. In fact, the court proceedings will take much the same form of those which were had some years ago, when an injunction was asked when the very same action was begun by Bishop Willis, he setting another service for the same hours which had been theretofore occupied by the Second Congregation for its worship.

The matter was placed in the hands of an attorney, who spent the afternoon in looking into the charter of the church and the proceedings of the synod which framed it, to find the grounds on which to place the action. When the form of action shall have been reached, there will be no time lost in getting the matter before one of the judges in the first circuit. It is believed that the Bishop's orders to hold a service will not hold if the court should see that there is an attempt to prevent the holding of a usual service, at the hour fixed by the Bishop under an agreement with a body of churchmen, in which it was set forth that the hours should not be changed without three months' notice being given.

It is developed that Bishop Willis, acting under what is his interpretation of the new charter of the church, issued his orders to effect the changes he desires, before the charter had been signed or agreed to by the government. Also it comes out that at the time of a conference upon the granting of the charter, he said to the representative of the Second Congregation that the church would not be closed at their usual hour. This was then understood to be an acquiescence in the continuance of the existence of the Second Congregation under the old agreement.

Bishop Willis is said to have advanced the theory that since the majority of the signers of the original application for the Second Congregation license are dead, there can be no claim made by the present communicants that the rights of the old signers inure to their benefit. This view is ridiculed by the members of the congregation, who have kept it alive for so many years and who have watched its growth, as the legitimate successor of the original congregation.

It is understood that an effort will be made this morning to place before Bishop Willis the claims of the Second Congregation under the expressed desire of the American Bishop that there be no change made in the status. This will be done by some member of the congregation who will thus endeavor to avoid any scandal, such as attended the former court proceedings. There appeared last night no desire, however, to sacrifice the rights which the Second Congregation worshippers have enjoyed heretofore, even if there must be had proceedings in the courts. The Rev. Alexander Mackintosh last evening said that he felt more than ever convinced that there was a misunderstanding on the part of Bishop Willis, as to what he claimed to be his rights under the charter, and that he was hopeful that there would be a peaceful settlement of the entire controversy, as he did not wish to see any acrimony injected into affairs of the church. He said there would be some of the members of the congregation who would try and bring about a peaceful settlement today, as they believed the Bishop would receive his letters from Bishop Potter, and would surely not run counter to the desire of the men who would have the settlement of all matters affecting the church here.

From other sources it is learned that there is small hope of this result, as Bishop Willis is said to hold a view of the impartiality of Bishop Potter, and his familiarity with the situation here, which will not permit any great amount of weight being given to any expression from the Bishop of New York.

Unless there is something done peacefully to settle the affair, the church will hardly be large enough to hold the congregation which will assemble on Sunday morning. There will be a large gathering of those who have in the past felt that the Bishop has gone too far, and the members of the congregation have expressed their determination to be out in force to show that if there is any interference with worship, it will be on the part of the Bishop and his forces.

FIRST DANCE OF THE ZENDAS

New Club Elated Over the Success of Its Initial Gathering.

Zenda Dancing Club made a good beginning last night. It had the first of a series of dances which are to be given on the last Thursday of each month until summer comes again. The dance was given in Progress Hall, and there were just enough young people present to make it a congenial gathering. The young ladies were prettily gowned, and all were good dancers, a feature of which the club felt proud. The committees in charge of the affair were fully alive to their duties, and the merriment and dancing never lagged throughout the evening.

The purple and white decorations around the hall, indicative of the colors which the club has adopted, were prettily arranged over the large archways. A feature which was quite a surprise to the young ladies was the presentation to them of red carnation leis during the grand march. The members also wore purple and white rosettes with streaming ends. The grand march took place at 8 o'clock, following which came waltzes, the deux temps, the schottische, and many extras which filled pleasant hours until after midnight. It is quite improbable that at the next dance any of the members of the club will attempt to "stag," as some did last evening, as the note of warning was sounded that a heavy fine would be imposed on the young man who failed to bring a partner with him at the next gathering. The president of the club is H. C. Bickerton, and the secretary treasurer, C. H. D. Smith. J. N. Shafer was an excellent floor manager, and won favor with all present by permitting encores to many of the dances. His assistants were T. A. O'Brien and C. A. S. Simpson. On the entertainment committee were G. A. Young, T. A. O'Brien and J. G. Schiefel. The membership committee is composed of J. H. Flynn, R. Lamont and A. Chambers. All the officers were pleased with the success of their first venture, and although the membership is limited, they have great expectations for the next dance. Light refreshments were served in one of the small ante-rooms during the evening.

THIRD AND LAST Great Clearance Sale!

LIKE THE BOY who always keeps the largest apple until the last, we have reserved the most desirable number for the last of our Three Great Sales—Sales which, by the way, have set all Honolulu talking, on account of the immense quantities of goods which we have offered for selection, and on account of the extraordinary prices at which we have offered them.

We have brought all our Shirt Waists upstairs from our basement salesroom. Every Waist has its price marked upon it in plain figures. You may have your choice of them while they last at exactly half of what they are marked. Be it understood that the prices at which they are marked are the regular prices of the goods. They have never been changed or altered in any way, as every one of our clerks knows and can bear witness. The price is there—you pay half of whatever it is. We must lose money, you think. We do; but these sales only come rarely. Odd sizes accumulate. Boxes which before had a dozen or a half-dozen waists come to have only one or two. It is a good time for clearing up. Our store space is small. We decide that it is better to take a loss and have the room. But for you, such a time is a golden opportunity to make fifty cents do what a dollar did before. For you buy:—

$1.00 waists for 50c.	$1.50 waists for 75c.
$1.75 waists for 87½c.	$2.00 waists for $1.
$2.50 waists for $1.25.	$3.00 waists for 1.55.
$3.50 waists for $1.75.	$4.00 waists for $2.00.
$4.50 waists for $2.25.	$5.00 waists for $2.50.
$5.50 waists for $2.75.	$6.00 waists for $3.00.
$6.50 waists for $3.25.
